

Drinkware

Impress even a sultan with gorgeous golden cantilevered THALIA MUGS, made as a collaboration between local product developer James Owen and Bishop House owner Brian Sunderland. The two worked for six months to find an adhesive that could bond borosilicate glass, 24k gold, and stainless steel and handle both 200-degree tea and iced coffee. $329 for set of two, bishophouseglass.com

The Occult

Kim Krans hand-drew each of the 78 cards in her WILD UNKNOWN TAROT DECK with intricate odes to nature, from Canada geese in flight on "The Lovers" card to the mighty pine tree on "The Emperor." The deck comes bundled in a gift set with an illustrated book on the meanings of each card and how to start reading. $40, thewildunknown.com

Furniture/Fun

VENN DESIGN creator Tyler Benner says his stylish, spherical chairs encourage active, thoughtful sitting by forcing you to balance (or gleefully bounce) while you work—a boon to both body and mind. Benner's orbs use an internal ball cushion wrapped in foam and a layer of heavy-duty fabric ranging from hemp linen to Pendleton's signature jacquard prints. $289–399, venndesign.co

Home

With her Mexican heritage as inspiration, Portlander Jennifer Bolanos dedicates her shop, VÍA RAÍZ, to contemporary designers reinterpreting traditional craft in jewelry, textiles, and home goods—like these black-and-white enamel spoons. $12, viaraiz.com
