

culinary ARTS

Marimekko adds a festive splash of color to white stoneware with its small rectangular Oiva plate (RIGHT) depicting the birds of the Kiiruna pattern, and the Oiva ceramic spoons (ABOVE) decorated with a red and white Okko pattern. Both are dishwasher, oven, microwave and freezer safe. $25, plate; $56, 4-spoon set. us.marimekko.com

▲ With a mesmerizing spiral design reminiscent of the Art Nouveau period, the Thalia collection by Bishop House takes morning coffee or afternoon tea to a whole new level. Each piece features a handblown borosilicate glass bowl nested in a cantilevered stainless steel base plated in 24-karat gold or sterling silver. Set of two, $329. bishophouseglass.com

▲ An exuberant floral motif adorns this ceramic Blue Teziutlan pitcher, handcrafted in Puebla by Pedro Tecayehuatl. The distinctive Talavera art form was brought to Mexico by artisans from Talavera de la Reina, Spain, with each piece uniquely made. $134.99; 47 oz. novica.com

◀ Just in time for the holidays, ExtravaGONZO offers a six-bottle gift set of premium infused culinary oils, including Jalapeño Lime, Roasted Garlic, Meyer Lemon and Blood Orange (all blends of 80/20 EVOO and grapeseed oil), plus Red and White Balsamic Vinegars. $39.99, 100mL each. extravagonzofoods.com

◀ Fresh from the family farm of Wood's Vermont Syrup Co., which has been making pure maple syrup for five generations, comes a specialty line of unique flavors, including barrel-aged bourbon maple syrup. Use it in sauces, for baking and grilling, over ice cream and even in cocktails. $15, 8 oz. thegrommet.com